

Distinguish, differentiate, compare and explain what is the main difference between Panel and Flush Door. Comparison and Differences.

Difference between Panel and Flush Door

1. Panel door are the types of doors which are widely used in almost all types of buildings. Flush doors are mostly used for public and commercial buildings.
2. Panel doors as the name suggest are available with number of panels whereas flush doors are not provided with number of panels.
3. Panel door consists of stiles, rails, mullions and panels either made of wood or glass. Flush door consists of skeleton or a hollow framework of rails and stiles.
4. In panel door, these restrictions do not apply to panels of plywood particle board or hard board. These doors are made of plywood sheet, block board, particle board, etc.
5. Panels doors are popular in old days. Flush doors are popular in now a days.